Main Characters - Protagonists

Jax, the Embodiment of the Continuum.

His main motive is to hone his power and search for Terra within the Continuum. He is a scavenger. Extrovert on the outside, introvert on the inside.

Kal Goes Rogue.

His main motive is to end King's authoritarian government and expose the truth. (that the King has been leeching off of people)

He's very quiet. Sometimes you'd think he is mute because he's so economic with his words.

He dresses to impress. Traditional outfit. However, not as extravagant... cuz he's an assassin. Elegant look and very light.

Bryan's Vengeance Arch.

Vagabond look. He is someone who has weights at home and works out all the time. Menacing looking, but on the inside, quite the loving person. (Never really shows it.) He likes to get high and read a good book. Gruffy and carries many weapon parts with him. Never someone who would laugh out loud. Curses a lot and not afraid to put a bullet in your head if you get on the wrong side.

His main motive is to find and kill (Spear dude).

He was born and raised in Jeju island. His grand father worked for the U.S. military base in Korea before it was disbanded officially by the Empire. His father moved to Jeju island to avoid the Empire's authoritarian society, and live a harsh yet independent life. Bryan's mother was an administrative officer in Jeju's international embassy (before it was colonized by the Empire). Bryan learned to hunt and survive, build a community, and make the best of his life. His father taught him how to shoot. His mother, who enjoyed reading novels, showed him the beauty of literature. Bryan and his parents were, nevertheless, content with the life they led. That was until the Empire decided to take over Jeju to use it as a defensive position against the mercenaries and pirates from the Thousand Islands. (Spear dude) from the Empire frequented the island, each time less negotiable and more threatening. After a few months, (Spear dude) attempts to relocate the residents of Jeju island by force. Ever so stubborn, Bryan's parents stood their ground and refused to give up. (Spear dude) seems to give up... But that's when things went wrong. One night, a series of lightning strikes the island, setting everything ablaze; houses, crops, animals, etc. Bryan and the people from the Empire guide the residents to evacuate. After most people have evacuated, Bryan heads back home to make sure his parents have escaped. However, when he arrived at the house, he saw his parents lying on the floor, cold and lifeless, blood slowly trickling toward Bryan's toes. Bryan's looks over next to the bodies to see (Spear dude). His spear is dripping fresh blood and his body is electrifying with energy. (Spear dude) notices Bryan and makes a run for the window. Bryan runs over to the gun rack, grabs his rifle, and aims for (Spear dude). The house starts to erupt in fire and smoke, but Bryan stands his ground and pulls the trigger. The bullet grazes (spear dude's) face, leaving a mark on him. (Spear dude) is startled. They both stare at each other for an uncomfortable moment. Both speechless and stunned.

Soon, the entire house starts to collapse. Bryan runs out to the front door and around the house to continue chasing after (spear dude). However, it's too late. (Spear dude) had disappeared already.

Ever since then, Bryan has been wandering around the world, trying to find ways to seek his vengeance.

He offers his hunting and survival skills to help anyone who's willing to pay him good money.

Lufio's Mission: Free the Beetles!

He was orphaned when his parents found out that he was a little deformed. It's hard to tell from far away, but he is on the verge of looking human or alien. His eyes are tainted, some parts of his skin is hard or even solid. However, he is like Naruto when he was first learning to be a ninja; youthful, childish, innocent, brave, and no-fucks-given. He wears whatever clothes he found. He lives amongst the wild beetles.

His main motive is to liberate all innocent beetles being experimented in the Empire.

Main Characters - Antagonists

(King)

His motive is to stop the continuum and bring peace to the world. (by controlling everyone with his power)

He looks like a fucking emperor. 60 isn looking.

(King's Daughter)

Her motive to protect her siblings with her life.

She is like Justine Trudeau... except Justine Trudeau is secretly being pressured to make decisions that he knows are bad for the society.

She wears traditional robe. She has some augmentations done on her head. She can control any body of water (using water as a symbolism for her character). She also learned to control fire and earth later in her life.

She loves her family so much and that is why she is so discouraged to call her dad out...

(Spear dude)

His motive is to always be better than his brother, Kal. He will do whatever it takes to be superior. He indulges in luxuries life as well.

He is cool and badass... He's a badboy and rides his bike and gets in trouble sometimes. (Kind of like Bakugou from My hero Academia) He rocks his outfit, which is mix of modern look, armour, and traditional pieces) He is someone who's got a sick tattoo, goes clubbing and fucks, but also works so fucking hard for what he wants. Most notably, he wields his spear (Think Zhao Yun from Three kingdoms) that also enhances his lightning abilities.

(Iron Beetle Paladin)

His/Her motive is to honourably and dutifully serve and protect the fair and innocent people of the Empire. They fully believe in the words of the King and follow through every mission without question.

“What’s your name, ma’am?” Lufio’s eyes are lit with curiosity.

“You maggot! He’s a dude.” Bryan smacks the back of Lufio’s skull.

(Iron Beetle Paladin) laughs wholeheartedly. Then, they fold their body in half to bow.

“Man or woman. Bad or good. Sword or shield. Living or dead. I will be anything the Empire needs and wants. However, to save your precious time and energy, you may call me by my humble name, (name). If you shall feel the need to call me otherwise, do not hesitate to do so.”

(Iron Beetle Paladin) stands up straight again and steels themselves.

“For the people! For the Empire. For the Future!” They proudly exclaim as a proud drop of tear runs down their face.

Everyone looks at Kal. Kal is blushing and let’s out a sigh.

“We are a bit intense.”

They dress in full modernized traditional heavy armour. They wield a sword and bears a shield (Think Overwatch). Bright and vibrant colours that can outshine the sunlight.
